

Laws of Life

Life is like a beautiful garden. The sun which grows all of the flowers, is like God who controls every action that I make. The flowers are the good qualities that are considered laws of life. The weeds are the bad qualities that nobody wants in their garden. My laws of life are love, responsibility, and ambition.

The roses in my garden stand for love. Love is a wonderful thing! Without it, I wouldn't even be here right now. When somebody says something about love, a lot of people say gross, or disgusting, but it isn't just that. In order for me to love somebody, I would have to care about them with all of my heart. I know I love my family and friends, because they are always there for me. The world would be nothing with out love!

The sunflowers in my garden are responsibility. Responsibility is very important in my life! Nobody would ever get anywhere in life without responsibility. Responsibility is needed to get through school, for jobs, and to just live life. In order for people to trust me, I need to be very responsible. Nothing would ever get done without responsible people. I believe that responsibility is needed to be a good person and lead a good life.

The lilies in my garden represent ambition. If I would want to be a somebody, I would have to have ambition. I know that if I want something, I have to keep trying until I get it. That is what ambition really is. Just think about it, if everyone gave up all of the time, would our world be as great as it is today? Our world wouldn't be anywhere near what it is today without ambition.

Without all of these great qualities, my garden would be full of weeds. All of these qualities make my life, or garden complete. Life is wonderful, so in order to live it, I have to have love, responsibility, and ambition.
